

Breaking: This random person we picked off a curb loves to express his love for all things puppies.

This random stranger LOVES puppies! In fact, he's going to go on an exactly two paragraph long rant about how much he loves them for no specific reason at all! Let's check in with him.

Rant one!

Stranger: Who me? Oh yeah. I really REALLY love puppies. They're the best. When they chase their little tail around sometimes, oh it's so cute. Wagging the whole time. I love 'em. Oh and, when they're playing with other puppies too?! It's the best! Honestly I have a few puppies at home if you want to check them out. There's what, like... 17? What? You're saying that's a lot? I don't what you mean. That's not even close to the amount I've had before. Oh man... now I'm thinking about how cute they are in their little fuzzy soft beds right now. I might have to go home to see that. You wanna ask me one more question? Sure! I could talk about puppies all day.

Plot Twist: Kittens!

Stranger: You're asking me about kittens? Of course I love them! They're even tinier and that means they're even cuter! Their little mews are the best. I think my favorite are calicos. Either that or the all black kittens, even on the nose. Don't see those often. I have a few stray kitties like that around my area, I think. They came to my door one day and I just couldn't resist taking them in. You have NO idea how cute they are when they try to play with the puppies! It's awesome! Their wonky stepping is soooo cute, I swear I could die.

Now for a quote from this very fluff-crazed stranger! For no specific reason!

"Puppies are like little bundles of joy. Oh, dogs too, I guess. But I like puppies more. Of course I still love dogs. It's a dog." -Stranger, Sept. 28th, 2023.